LOT 1227

A pair of Japanese boxwood and ivory figures, Meiji/Taisho period, each modelled as a man holding a drum with a box resting at his feet, on a naturalistic base, inset with an incised mother-of-pearl signature panel, height 16.5cm.

Estimate: £100 - £150

Condition Report

1227. Both figures are essentially in good condition, except both are missing what they would have been holding in their right hands (a drum beater?).
