LOT 4085

A late Victorian Arts and Crafts cloisonné enamel charger, probably by Clement Heaton, circa 1890, decorated in shades of green and blue with a central foliate motif within a rim of scrolling foliage, copper backed, diameter 42.5cm (some faults). Note: the company 'Heatons Cloisonné-Mosaic Ltd' was set up in 1887 after Clement Heaton sold his share in his father's stained glass business. Heaton was an early member of A.H. Mackmurdo's Century Guild.

Estimate: £200 - £300

Condition Report

4085. Numerous dents to the back has resulted in quite an uneven surface to the front. There are some areas of cracking in these areas of the cloisonné, with some minor loss to one small area of the rim, two areas to the edge of the well and some minor surface dents. Worth mentioning that it is indistinctly inscribed to the back.
