Condition Report

We have not seen enough of these Murano pieces to advise whether it is a period piece or a later issue. We have spoken to the vendor who apparently purchased it fairly recently at a car boot sale. Please see the extra images on our website using the zoom function where there is a close up of the engraved mark.

There is a good amount of typical wear/scratches to the footrim.

The body overall has a lot of very deep noticeable and often concentrated scratches, particularly to one side and in a patch to the other side - but also, I repeat, to the body overall, including the rim.

There does not appear to have been any re-polishing of damage or any repairs.

There are some light and minor surface scratches to the interior.
