Condition Report

Typical crazing to glaze overall. There is a firing crack to the right side edge of the basket which runs across its base and indistinctly up the side disappearing into the knees of the boy - it is only actually really visible to the underside. There are six tiny chips to the tulip petals and leaves, very small. A vertical fine haircrack runs up the back of the woman's shawl, two similar go across her knees. There is a minor hairline to the base by the air hole.
