LOT 1100

A Chinese porcelain rectangular plaque, late Qing dynasty, finely painted with a landscape scene of bamboo and willow saplings clinging to rocks at the water's edge, all beneath an iron red oval seal incorporating part Qianlong mark, 38cm x 25.3cm, framed, together with a hardwood screen frame, believed to have originally enclosed the porcelain plaque. Provenance: this plaque came from the Hong Kong home of the current vendor's grandfather, who was a resident there from 1911.

Estimate: £600 - £1,000

Condition Report

1100. The panel is in good condition with no chips, cracks or repairs. Enamels are good and vibrant with only typical light surface scratches.

The wood screen stand is in generally good order.
