A late Victorian silver novelty propelling pencil by Sampson Mordan & Co, finely modelled as a plumb bob, the spherical body enclosing a telescopic five-drawer stem, one section bearing lozenge registration mark, the end detailed 'S. Mordan & Co No. 2393', extended length 10.5cm.

Estimate: £150 - £200

Condition Report

2573. The pencil seems to operate properly, but the lead is not long enough to be sure that it works correctly. The surface has some overall minor surface hairline scratching and a few very small dinks. No hallmarks, but probably silver.
