A large South-east Asian carved stone head of Buddha, probably 10th/11th century, the face finely carved with gently rounded features, open eyes, full lips and elongated earlobes, height 65cm, mounted on a metal stand.

Estimate: £5,000 - £7,000

Condition Report

1200. The head is in generally very good condition with no significant damage or repairs. There are typical minor chips, predominantly to edges of headdress, but facial details and ears in good condition.

It is a fantastic size and very heavy (a two-person lift).

Please note, the colour is slightly darker than the images you see online due to the flash photography.
