Condition Report

Blue enamelled butterfly - one colourless gem from an antenna is missing. There is some noticeable enamel loss to both larger wings nearest the body, revealing the white beneath the enamel. There are a few shallower nibbles to the enamel on the outer edges, the majority of which only noticeable when viewed under a 10x loupe. The pin at the back is ever so slightly bent.

Marius Hammer butterfly - overall in generally good condition, the enamel is largely in good condition, with one or two of the smallest of nibbles to the enamel outer edges, noticeable only when viewed under a 10x loupe. One antenna is ever so slightly bent.
