There is evidence of repair to the strap terminal, where extra gold has been used to try and strength the broken areas, this is noticeable and is quite fragile.

There is a smaller area of similar repair work to the buckle side of the bracelet, less significant. Plus there are one or two other broken links along the edges of the bracelet.

The gem set moveable fastening has been bent in on one side, still useable.

The pearls are greyish with a low lustre, some have peeled. There is variation of colour to the rubies.

Suggested age - early 20th century.

Width of bracelet - 8.5mm, width of buckle - 16mm.
