

British and Continental Ceramics / Thu, 5th December 2024 / Lot 1673

LOT 1673

A German stoneware armorial Bartmann jug or Bellarmine, 17th century, the ovoid body decorated with a coat of arms within an oval panel beneath a face mask to the neck, loop handle and reeded exterior to the foot, height 30cm (faults).

Estimate: £70 - £100

---

Condition Report

The main body is very badly cracked, this includes part of the lower handle, with some small losses along the crack/break lines. There is a corresponding large section of the foot which has been broken off and restored back with losses and chips along the break line and to the surrounding area. There are some chips to the outer edges of the handle.

There is an oblong shaped hole to the main body to the side of the coat of arms.

Please see the 14 images on our website using the zoom function.

Created: Wed, 4th December 2024 10:59